INTRODUCTION

WorkLink is an online employment site created to tackle the rising problem of employment and lack of employment opportunities in Cape Town. It is a platform where job seekers can meet employers who have temporary, part-time, freelance, and full-time job positions. WorkLink is different from traditional job boards because it's about accessibility, digital inclusion, and communication between workers and employers is easy.

In this ecosystem, social media is a strategic digital marketing tool that helps to create awareness, engage, educate, and help with platform adoption. # CONTENT STRATEGY AND USER ENGAGEMENT

The WorkLink social media strategy is based on a content framework that aims to inform, engage, and motivate users. This system is based on the tenets of Content Marketing, which create content to give value and steer user behavior.

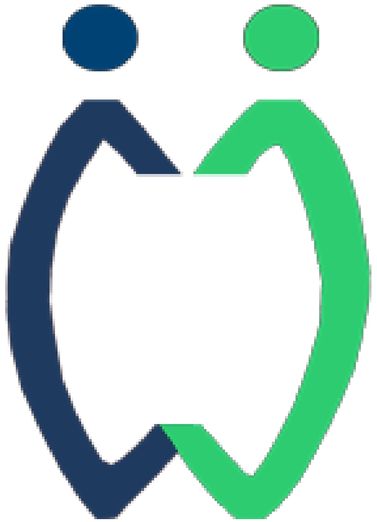

One of the key elements of the strategy is the provision of educational content. These posts explain how to set up profiles, apply for career applications, and how to use the site. Educational content can solve the common usability problems, so that the user can better trust the content and decrease the barriers to content access.

Job opportunity posts are direct-value content, which helps users to connect to jobs as they become available. The posts include a strong call to action, making it easy for users to move from social media interactions to platform engagements.

Digital Literacy is greatly enhanced through tutorial videos, often on short-form platforms. These videos help make the platform more user-friendly and accessible to a greater audience by visually explaining how the system works.

Success stories are used as a trust-building exercise. These posts are an example of how WorkLink's posts and posts by its real users are reinforcing the credibility of WorkLink and motivating new users to join the system.

Polling, questions, and feedback sessions help promote engagement and a sense of community. This interactive way will not only improve user relationships but also help continuously improve the system as well.

COLOUR PALETTE JUSTIFICATION

White is the basic background color, which symbolizes ease, openness, and transparency. It has a significant impact on improving the readability and making the content easily recognizable, especially on mobile devices, where most users will be using it. Transparency is particularly crucial when using WorkLink: users must believe what is displayed, such as job postings and information about the employers.

Trust Blue symbolizes trust, reliability, and institutional credibility. This color helps to convey trust and reliability, making WorkLink appear as a safe and reliable online platform for job seekers and employers. A robust and stable blue enhances user confidence, a critical factor for the adoption and sustained users' engagement.

Green is a symbol of opportunity, growth, and economic empowerment, and works right in line with WorkLink's mission to enhance job accessibility. The colour conveys the messages of hope, progress, and personal development, especially for disadvantaged groups such as young people and people who have not yet found employment. It creates an opportunity to see WorkLink not just as a job platform, but as a system for social and economic development as well.

Teal is a colour that represents accessibility, innovation, and inclusiveness. It helps strengthen WorkLink's reputation as a contemporary and easy-to-use digital platform that efficiently links job seekers and employers. The colour boosts the platform's goal of providing a welcoming work environment, making it easier for users to feel at ease.

Orange is action, urgency, and engagement in the platform interface. It is strategically used to display interactive features like buttons and calls-to-action like apply for jobs, create profiles, and engage with employers. This colour enhances interaction and engagement with the user, as it allows for rapid and responsive interaction.

Soft Grey is used as a neutral support colour to provide a better visual flow, readability, and structure in the platform. With so much information (job postings, user profiles), the colour helps to lighten the scene, but also not to lose sight of it, nor make it inaccessible. This helps keep everything neat, tidied and convenient to use.
